The Hague Security Delta

Secure Digital Gateway to Europe

The Netherlands is well known for its excellent logistics and infrastructure, as well as for its strategic position in the European Union. These strengths have earned it the title 'Gateway to Europe'. The Netherlands' modern IT environment and presence of the national security cluster 'The Hague Security Delta' makes it the 'Secure Digital Gateway to Europe' as well. The Netherlands owes this position primarily to its:

- well-functioning, state-of-the-art digital infrastructure (AMS-IX is the largest Internet Exchange in the world)
- vibrant IT sector doing world-class research
- businesses, governments, and knowledge institutions working together on innovations
- consumers and companies, which are quick to embrace IT innovations.

Thanks to these favourable conditions, a wide range of foreign IT and cyber security companies have already opened offices in the Netherlands. Also, many leading IT companies have located their European headquarters in the country.

The Hague, European Cyber Security Capital

The Hague has established itself as a major hub for cyber security in Europe, which is demonstrated by the presence of the European Cybercrime Centre Europol (EC3), the National Cyber Security Centre, NATO Communications and Information Agency, Cyber Security Academy and wide range of cyber security businesses. The city is also home to The Hague Security Delta Campus: the national innovation centre for security, where businesses, governments and knowledge institutions collaborate to develop innovative security solutions.

The Hague Security Delta

The Hague Security Delta (HSD) is the leading security cluster in Europe. In this Dutch cluster – with important regional hubs in The Hague, Twente, and Brabant – businesses, governments, and knowledge institutions work together on innovation and knowledge in the field of security and safety. They share a common goal: more business activity, more jobs, and a secure world.

Europol-INTERPOL Cybercrime Conference: 27 -29 September

The Europol-INTERPOL Cybercrime Conference is an innovative annual joint initiative hosted alternately by the European Cybercrime Centre (EC3) in The Hague and by the INTERPOL Global Complex for Innovation (IGCI) in Singapore.

This year's edition will bring to The Hague law enforcement officials, private sector, academia, international organisations and other key entities from across the world to strengthen cooperation on preventing and combatting cybercrime.

Participation is possible on invitation only.

Would you like to attend? Please register at cybersecurityweek.nl. The organisers will consider the requests received from the HSD partners and issue invitations according to their own assessment based on venue availability.
